Local and General:

Mr. and Mrs. Ivor Lewis visited Calgary on Friday, returning on Sunday.

Mr. Jno. Morrison was a visitor to Calgary on Friday and returned on Saturday.

We notice that Ed. Hendrickson is back amongst us again after a lengthy visit to Lambertson, Washington, U.S.A.

When a fellow's wife is on holiday visiting her mother, he begins to shed buttons like a hen moulting. But look at the good times he has, and then, nails are only about $3 a keg.

Mr. L. Bliss has sold this week to J. Morrison, the quarter section known as the Old Gasin place, at a fair price.

We notice our old friend L. Fisher was in town on Thursday visiting friends. He is looking in the pink. We wonder whether it is the soldiers life or a married life that is making this change. Which is it Lu?

I say, there are those discs of yours that want sharpening, the time is now drawing very near when you will want to use them. Why not let Walter Bradley get them up? All kinds of blacksmith work at reasonable prices.

Amongst the many names of the contestants in the News Telegram Prize contest we notice the name of Miss May Nicholson, of the Post Office, Crossfield. May appears to be well in the running as a Prize winner, being third from the top. Miss Nicholson deserves credit as the representative of this district. Now boys give her your subscription.

There will be no service at the Church of the Ascension next Sunday, but on Sunday week (28th inst), the service will be in the evening at 7.30, and will be conducted by Rev. F. R. B. Leacroft, of Calgary. Mr. Leacroft is a man of wide experience and much ability, and a hearty invitation is extended to all to be present at this service. The rev. gentleman's elder son, Capt. Leacroft, laid down his life at the front some three months ago, his second son being also in the Army.

THE LADIES' AID.

The Ladies Aid of the Union Church with a few friends met at Parsonage, Wednesday afternoon week, and presented Mrs. Ledingham with a Berry Set and the following address:—

"To MRS. LEDINGHAM.

Dear Friend and Fellow Worker, Hearing of your approaching departure from amongst us the members of Union Church Ladies Aid felt they could not let you go, without, at least some slight token of recognition of your past faithful services.

As a Society, your home has always been open to us, and in all our enterprises, we have ever found you ready to lend the helping hand and offer cheerful words of encouragement, and thus you have performed your part towards making those efforts a success. We shall miss your cheerful friendly aid, but we do not, that in the town where you expect to make your future home, you will find abundant room for the exercise of all your talents and powers in service for the Master.

Please accept this gift in remembrance of your friends in Crossfield Ladies Aid. We all wish you and your husband success in your new undertaking."

Heard of Them From Her Brother

WHY MRS. MARCHBANK USED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

She Found Quick Relief and Now Recommends All Who Suffer as She Did to Use Dodd's Kidney Pills

St. Martin's, St. John Co., N.B.—(Special).—Mrs. Violet Marchbank, wife of a well known farmer living near here, is telling her neighbors of the splendid results she has got through using Dodd's Kidney Pills. "My trouble started from a cold," Mrs. Marchbank states. "I had backache, my joints were stiff and my muscles cramped. I was irritable and always thirsty. My appetite was fitful and I felt heavy and sleepy after meals. Rheumatism was added to my troubles as well as headaches, and heart fluttering made me very anxious at times."

"I suffered for about two years and was far from being a well woman when my brother told me what great things Dodd's Kidney Pills had done for him and I made up my mind to try them."

"I sent and got three boxes and they helped me right from the start. I can recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all women who suffer as I have suffered. Every one of Mrs. Marchbank's symptoms was a symptom of kidney trouble. That is why she found such quick relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Prohibition in Russia

Said to be Working Favorably Throughout the Empire

Writing of the result of prohibition in Russia, Mr. Wacław Czerwinski writes in a British newspaper, from his own experience in that country.

The Russian empire, the least educated and least civilized among the contented powers, first set an example in the restricting of the sale of drink. It is worth noticing that the entire prohibition of alcohol in Russia did not meet with any resistance, or even serious protest from the people. It is true that the liberty of the Russian press and the liberty of the expression of opinion in Russia have not been compared with those of England.

In spite of this, however, recent Russian history gives ample examples of protests on various occasions from the people against government policy. The abolition of monopoly, and even the prohibition, have met with the approval of the whole Russian nation. The peasantry, the working classes, and even the well-to-do classes are blessing the decision of the Tsar.

The enormous difficulties of obtaining liquor produce their due result. The nation as a whole is compelled to be sober. The number of criminals, and even the total of diseases, instantly diminished to a great extent.

The peasantry, indeed the whole nation, is more and more prosperous. National feelings and aspirations grow ever deeper. The beneficial result of sobriety in Russia is particularly noticeable in the Russian army. Again and again I heard from Russian officers in the firing line the opinion that the Russian soldier is a much harder fighter than the German because he is always sober, his energy is not kept up artificially, and consequently, it lasts longer than in the case of the Germans.

I can state on my own personal investigations in Galicia that the Russian army in its present condition treat no atrocities have been committed, although the German and Austrian press accuse the Russian army of such misdeeds.

It is quite probable that, when a million men are fighting, instances of theft and unjust verdicts on suspected spies may occur, but such events are extremely rare. And this attitude of the army can again be attributed to the sobriety of the soldier.

Sores Flee Before It.—There are many who have been afflicted with sores and have driven them away with Dr. Thomas' Eucodine Oil, which acts like magic. All similarly troubled should lose no time in applying this splendid remedy, as there is nothing like it to be had. It is cheap, but its power is in no way expressed by its low price.

Joffe Asks Civilians To Do Their Own Part

"If Frenchmen Keep Steady, We Shall Have Victory," He Says

General Joffe says that the essential thing now is for the civilians to do their part in holding them. "If only the civilians will hold firm and be the essential thing," said the French commander-in-chief, to a delegation from the National Railroad Men's Union formed to help the war sufferers.

"We Frenchmen keep steady we shall have victory," not immediately, or even soon, but eventually."

The head of the delegation said: "There is one thing which encourages us above all others. It is that the commander-in-chief enjoys the confidence of everyone. People do not say 'General Joffe,' but 'our Joffe,' or 'Grandfather Joffe.'"

"The general himself, more deeply touched than he cared to show. Then he said gravely: 'I have only one object, that is the salvation of the country.' After that I shall disappear."

HEALTH WRECKED THROUGH LA GRIPPE

It Generally Leaves the Patient Debilitated and an Easy Victim to Other Diseases

One of the foremost medical writers says: "It is astonishing the number of people who have been wrecked in health for years after an attack of la grippe or influenza." The real danger from this disease, which sweeps over Canada every winter, is during the symptoms, the fever, the catarrh, the headache and the depression of spirits pass away. Grippe leaves behind it weakened vital powers, thin blood, impaired digestion and over-sensitive nerves—condition that makes the system an easy prey to pneumonia, rheumatism, nervous prostration and even consumption. It is a condition that calls most emphatically for a tonic or blood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is especially adapted to meet this need as they purify and enrich the blood. They tone up the nerves, give vigor, strength and health to the debilitated system. Mrs. Howard D. Chaffey, Indian Island, N. B., says: "For several winters in succession I was attacked by la grippe which left me weak and badly run down. In each case I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with the most beneficial results. Last winter when the trouble was again prevalent I took the precaution of fortifying my system with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and escaped the trouble, while many of my neighbors were down with it. In fact I enjoyed the best of health all spring and feel sure this medicine will so fortify the system as to prevent the trouble."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"Here's a most wonderful thing. I've just been reading of a man who reached the age of forty without learning how to read or write. He met a woman, and for her sake he made a scholar of himself in two years." The Man—That's nothing. I know a man who was a profound scholar at forty. Then he met a woman, and for her sake he was a fool of himself in two days."

Minard's Liniment Cures Garget in Cows.

"Is your husband a confirmed party man?" asked the smiling candidate.

"Laws, no. He's out dancing, and don't even attend his lodge regular," answered Mrs. Wayback.

Makes Breathing Easy. The constriction of the air passages and the struggle for breath, too familiar evidence of asthmatic trouble, cannot be cured by Dr. Kellie's Asthma Remedy. This famous remedy which is known far and wide for its complete effectiveness even under very severe conditions. It is an untried, experimental preparation, but one with many years of strong service behind it. Buy it from your nearest dealer.

Must Confiscate Everything The London Daily News prints the following order, alleged to have been issued by the German General Sommer in Russia:

"Requisitions have been carried out too mildly. I therefore order that everything which is needed for the war, such as foodstuffs, blankets, warm coats, cattle, horses, sheep, goats, etc., shall be confiscated without delay."

The prayers of the Russian population that part of such things be left to them are to be regarded. We are in a enemy country, and so humanitarian considerations have no value. There is more safety in taking than in giving."

"Mrs. Gladfield's baby cried the other day, when she wanted to take it from the nurse a moment."

"Yes, the poor little dear is afraid of strangers."

Dust Bath for Poultry

A Dust Bath is Essential to the Health of Poultry

Finely screened coal ashes make the most effective sort of a dust bath for the hens. The fine dust penetrates the fowls' feathers, and coming in contact with the skin, it keeps the breathing passages of these parasites, causing them to suffocate and die. Wood ashes are even better for this purpose, because the particles of dust are finer, but here again the lime is objectionable, since it tends to take the gloss off the plumage.

Coal ashes should be used freely on the floors of poultry buildings, for they will penetrate cracks and crevices, and will assist in destroying mites and will assist in dissipating noxious odors, and in improving conditions generally. Still another advantage: large quantities of the cinders will be eaten by the birds as grit, and will contribute some of the mineral nutrients. Small bits of coal will be eaten also, and will be digested.

Dead removed from a road during dry weather, which is only an annoyance to travellers, will be found plentiful in the dust boxes. Every poultry farm should have a supply on hand for winter use; for, unless dirt floors are used, these artificial means of supplying the fowls' total requirements must be prepared. A dust bath is quite as essential to the well being of poultry as is the regular soap water variety to the human. —The "New" Farmer.

A Pleasant Purgative.—Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are so compounded as to operate on both the stomach and the bowels, so that they act along the whole alimentary and excretory passages. Their action does not irritate the work, but mildly purgative, and the pleasure of taking them is only equalled by the gratifying effect they produce. Compounded only of vegetable substances the curative qualities of which were fully tested, they afford relief without chance of injury.

"Cannon to the left of them, cannon to the right of them, cannon behind them volleyed and thundered."

So quote the enthusiastic war correspondent. But the censor cut out this passage.

"Can't be giving away the positions of our artillery," commented he sagely.

Wife:—The next doors had a snow shovel come today.

Hubby:—Great! I was afraid we'd have to buy one of our own.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

It is all very well for fleshy people to admire a slim figure, but no girl likes to be referred to as "thin as a match" or "flat as an ironing-board."

Thinness means that the tissues are not properly fed and nourished. It indicates a tendency towards anaemia, which must be overcome in its early stages. You may eat plenty of food, but you are losing weight, and with it reserve force. The blood has got thin and watery.

It is usually the nervously energetic girl or woman who wears herself down by worry and anxiety, until the nerves become irritable and the form emaciated.

This condition never rights itself, and for this reason you must seek external assistance, such as is found in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This treatment should not be confused with fattening, oil-composed preparations. It is rather a true tonic, which sharpens the appetite, improves digestion and restores richness to the blood. Through the medium of the blood it feeds and nourishes the starved cells and tissues back to health.

Under this restorative, upbuilding treatment the angles disappear, and the form is rounded out to healthy proportions. The new tissues formed are strong and firm, and give the body the buoyancy and vigor which makes you look well and feel well. Nervous headaches and indigestion disappear, and you feel the joy of living. You can prove the benefit obtained by noting each week your increase in weight.

German Casualties Total 2,535,768

Harold J. Tennant, parliamentary under-secretary for war, announced in the house of commons recently that the total German casualties, as published in the Berlin casualty lists to date, totalled 2,535,768. Of this number, he said, 588,986 were killed.

The war under-secretary said the German wounded and missing numbered 1,566,449, while 356,151 men had been taken prisoners. In addition 24,989 German had died from various causes.

The figures as given out by Mr. Tennant, embrace the entire German army.

The publisher of the best Farmers' paper in the Maritime Provinces is writing to us stating:

"I would say that I do not know of a machine that has stood the test of time like MINARD'S LINIMENT. It has been an unfailing remedy in our household ever since I can remember, and has outlived dozens of would-be competitors and imitators."

18,207 Houses are Burned by Teutons

A despatch from Havre says that a report has just been issued by the Belgian government giving the number of houses in the various provinces of Belgium, which, the report says, were burned by the Germans.

The following figures are given:

Brabant, 5,331; Liege, 2,703; Antwerp, 1,500; Malines, 1,748; Diest, 2,232; Namur, 1,710; Philadelphia, 1,501; Huy, 255; Verviers, 681; Tournai, 15; Turnhout, 40. The total is 18,207.

The figures for Flanders are not yet obtainable.

The Mystery of the Ravenspurs

By Fred M. White

Ward, Lock & Co. Limited
London, Melbourne and Toronto

The woman asked the question mechanically. She knew perfectly well what the reply would be; she knew that she had been discovered at last, and that the murder of York had been turned to good purpose by Teligorsky. And she knew now who her new ally, Ben Heer, really was. "Dr. Voak," Vera exclaimed.

She had been hearing all about Lassa and a certain Princess Zara, who seems to be a dreadful witch. But I fear that I am exciting you. And you haven't drunk your tea."

The woman gulped down her tea and then fell back on her bed, closing her eyes. She wanted to be alone, to have time to think. Danger had threatened her before, but not living, palpitating peril like this. Vera crept away and the woman rose again, but she could not get from her bed.

"Fascinating, strange tales filled her eyes. That man has beaten me," she groaned. "It is impossible for me to tell. But their revenge will not be of long duration."

CHAPTER LVII. MARION COMES BACK

The police had more or less taken possession of Ravenspur. They were everywhere—asking questions, that Teligorsky took upon himself to answer.

As he had expected, the note carried by Vera and deposited in the farmhouse garden had been found on one of the bodies. The inspector of police was an intelligent man, and he fell in with everything that Teligorsky suggested.

"Of course you can't read this book," said the Russian, as he handed over the fatal diary for safe custody. "But there are one or two Oriental scholars in London who will bear out my testimony. Have you any doubt?"

"Personally, not the least," the inspector replied. "You say it is impossible for that woman to get away?"

"Absolutely impossible. She is safe for days."

"Then in that case there is no need to arrest her. That will have to come after the inquest on these men, which we shall hold tomorrow. And what a sensation the case will make! If I had read this thing in a book I should have laughed at it. And now we must have a thorough search for those electrical appliances."

It was long past dinner-time before the police investigation was completed. Aided by Teligorsky a vast amount of mechanical appliances was found, including the machine that was to do so much harm to the Ravenspurs.

PAIN SIDE AND BACK

How Mrs. Kelly Suffered and How She was Cured.

Burlington, Wis.—"I was very irregular, and had pains in my side and back, and after taking Lydia E. The many convincing testimonials constantly published in the newspapers ought to be proof enough to women who suffer from these distressing ills peculiar to their sex that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine they need.

apurs, and which had ended in wrecking the schemes of their arch-enemy."

"Inquest at ten to-morrow, sir," the inspector remarked to Ravenspur. "I am very sorry, but I shall not trouble you more than we can help."

Ravenspur shook his head sadly. He was not particularly vexed in the ways of the law, but he could see a long case ahead, and he was beginning to worry about Marion. It was nearly ten o'clock now and the girl had not returned.

It would be a sad home-coming for the girl, but they would all do what they could for her. Everybody appeared to be duly sympathetic except Ralph, who said nothing. Teligorsky seemed to have cultivated himself entirely.

Geoffrey had retired to the billiard-room, where Vera followed him. They started a game, but their nerves were in no condition to finish. Once more they hung down and the lovers stood before the fireplace.

"What are you thinking about?" Geoffrey asked, yawned.

Vera looked up dreamily. She touched Geoffrey's cheek caressingly. She looked like one who is happy and I fear that I am exciting you. And you haven't drunk your tea."

"Of many things, pleasant and otherwise," she said, and she smiled into the dark myself, but those who know tell me that the shadow has lifted from her face. As if it is great a joy that I dare not let myself slip upon her. To me it is that we may not let met again, to think well upon that. But what has Mrs. May to do with it?"

Vera was not behind the scenes as yet. Still, within a few hours the thing must come out. What the family regarded as a nurse had been procured for the invalid, a nurse who really was a female wanderer in disguise, and Ravenspur had sternly given strict orders that nobody was to go near that room. He vouchsafed no answer, he said, he said it was obeyed.

Then Geoffrey told Vera everything. He went through the whole story from the very beginning. Vera listened as one in a dream. She looked down beyond her comprehension. Awful as the cloud was that had fallen upon the Ravenspurs, she had not imagined it to be such depravity as this.

"How could she do that?" she asked. "It is like a man's sin, but it is like a woman's sin," said Vera. "The child of a creature who deliberately murdered, and who tried to destroy his family so that she could get a living out of it?"

"That is what I have heard of. Why?"

"I was thinking of that other girl, the girl like Marion that you were talking about just now. What has become of her?"

Geoffrey shook his head. He had forgotten that most mysterious personage. It was more than likely, he explained, that Teligorsky would know. Not that it much mattered. The girl was dead, and she had been in that state of mind for some little time, and then a peal of laughter from the drawing room caused them to smile.

"Mother," said Vera, "I don't hear nor laugh like that for years. Does it not seem funny to realize that before long we shall be laughing and chatting and moving with the world once more, Geoff? I should like to leave Ravenspur and have a long, long holiday on the Continent."

"So you shall, sweet," he said. "We can be married now. And when we come home to Ravenspur we will be the dear old home I recollect in my childhood's days. Vera, you and I shall be the happiest couple in the world."

They went back to the drawing room. Here the elders were conversing quietly yet happily. There was an air of cheerful gaiety upon them that the house had not known for many a long day.

Gordon Ravenspur was impressing upon his father the necessity of looking more sharply after the shooting. The head of the family had before him some plans of new farm buildings.

It was marvelous what a change the last few hours had wrought. And the smile of all the sorrow and anguish was upstairs garded by eyes that never tired.

"How bright and cheerful you look," Vera said. "It only wants one thing to make the picture complete. You can guess, but I shall not tell."

"Marion," Ravenspur said, "Marion, our daughter, is safe."

"She will come back," Ralph murmured. "Marion will return. We shall see her. I should not wonder if she were not on her way home this very moment."

Half an hour passed, an hour elapsed, and yet no Marion. They were all getting uneasy, but Ralph was doggedly in his chair. Then there was a commotion outside. The door opened, and Marion came in.

She looked pale and uneasy. She came from one to the next, and the frightened eyes. It was easy to see that she was greatly moved and, moreover, was not sure of the warmth of her reception. But she might have made her mind easy by that score. All rose to welcome her. "My dear, dear child," Vera cried, "where have you been?"

Vera fluttered forward and took off

Marion's cloak. All seemed to be delighted. Marion dropped into a chair with a quiver across her face. She felt his way across to her and stood by the side of her chair.

"I fancied I had made a discovery," she said. "It occurred to me perhaps that I had not let us talk about myself. Has anything happened here?"

"Much," Ralph cried. "Great things the mystery is solved, and the late Jasper Ravenspur. Marion we have found the culprit?"

"The culprit is in the house. She is Mrs. May. I prefer to call her Princess Zara and yet again I might call her Mrs. Heer. Everybody appeared to be duly sympathetic except Ralph, who said nothing. Teligorsky seemed to have cultivated himself entirely."

Geoffrey had retired to the billiard-room, where Vera followed him. They started a game, but their nerves were in no condition to finish. Once more they hung down and the lovers stood before the fireplace.

Big Commonwealth Army

300,000 Australians Will be Under Arms Next June

One of the first official acts of the new prime minister of Australia, Wm. M. Hughes, has been an announcement that a fresh army will be furnished by the Commonwealth, and that this army will number 300,000 men. "This further contribution," said Mr. Hughes, "will bring the total number of men supplied by Australia by next June to something like 300,000 men. It is to be understood that the principal military element is to be adhered to. No requests had been made to the Commonwealth by the federal government for more men. The offer was quite spontaneous. I have not the slightest doubt that the necessary men will be forthcoming. These will form new units, and are independent of the quota of 2,500 a month necessary for reinforcements."

A government appeal will be made by mail to every man in Australia within the military age group based on the recent war census—that is, single men from 16 to 44 years.

"Devil," our Ireland." Private Kennard, 1st Inniskilling Fusiliers, writes to his mother, published in the regimental journal, says:

"The old Turks are nearly fed up with war, but the Germans won't let them hand in their guns. The old Turks had a hard time in the trench, and the first thing we heard was them striking up the Royal Irish Fusiliers. A few shells from a gunboat were dropped in the trench, and in a second you could see nothing but brass instruments and German heads and legs flying in all directions in the air. There were a large number of our regiment killed in our last engagement, and that makes about four times we have been in a death trap. It is very hard on us, but we are able in the front, and matter what I do, and we can't be kept back when we start."

"The Turks run when we get near them, and they don't like the men who carry the Inniskilling badge) in their caps. Their officers, who talk good English, call us the 'Devil from Ireland.'"

How a Windbreak Saved June 15th, 1902, a dollar, and so, soil moisture saved from evaporation is equivalent to rainfall. The loss of soil water by evaporation and Nebraska showed the value of the windbreak in preventing evaporation.

It must be admitted that windbreaks occupy space that could be probably be devoted to agricultural crops, and that the roots of the trees grow on either side of a strip of ground on either side of the windbreak relatively unproductive. Yet sufficient windbreaks are needed to moss good than evil, reducing the velocity of the wind and, therefore, the loss of soil water by evaporation. It seems from investigations made by the United States forest service that the greater plant of hard crops and apples behind the protection of windbreaks is worth to warrant every farmer in the prairie states in planting windbreaks.

German Women and Peace

Strong Evidence of a Feeling of Revolt Against the War

A letter in the "Berliner Tageblatt," under the caption "German Women and Peace," contains evidence of the revolt against war. Ellen Pasche, the writer of the letter, sharply contradicts the assertion that the Germans had to break with so many evil habits contracted by indulgence and luxury in time of peace that a long war, as compared with a short one, had distinct compensations. "It is impossible for me," she exclaims, "to describe my feelings, as I find that Dr. Scrimgeour has no word for the horrors of war." The letter continues:

"There are people who hold, and still hold, that it was entirely necessary, but it is to be hoped that all these nevertheless say to themselves: Never again, never again, must there be so much sorrow and so many tears in the world. It is through my faith in this sentiment, that I am convinced that the peace movement will find its greatest strength after the war. And who are more suited to carry on that work than women? And who are more ready to sacrifice than women?"

CROSSFIELD, ALTA., MAR. 17, 1916.

Students from Olds

Visit F. Collicut's
Ranch

Upwards of forty of the young men from the Olds School of Agriculture, arrived in Crossfield on the early morning train on Saturday last. Mr. F. Collicut met them on their arrival. After partaking of a good breakfast at the Alberta Hotel the boys began to think it was time to be moving. But as the cars that the different owners had kindly put at the service of the visitors were not in evidence they had to wait for a short time. As soon as the phone got in operation, requests were made to hurry up, and soon sufficient autos were on hand to convey them to their destination.

Mr. Myers, the well known cattle judge accompanied the students. As soon as the different cars got under way the mud holes had to be negotiated, also the various sloughs of different depths, from a foot to two or three. Talk about roads, they could not be called by such a name, "swamps" would be nearer the definition. Surely something could be done to improve such a state of things. If all the farmers in the district would combine with the object in view of having an improvement made, and keep on hammering away they might get something done.

Eventually all arrived at Willow Springs, most of the party well beamed with the mud gathered on the journey, this however, did not mar the objects of the visit, which was, to see all, hear all, and learn all that was possible. After an inspection of the stock in the two large barns, judging commenced. This was an object lesson in reality. The heads of the herds were the first to be brought out to be inspected, and after being thoroughly examined by the students, Mr. Myers asked for votes as to the position the animals should be placed. The one getting the most votes being placed first. Then the students were asked to state why they placed one before the other, and in this way several lots were gone through. Mr. Myers, as referee, giving his decision, and pointing out the good points or otherwise of each animal examined.

Noon quickly arrived, and Mr. Collicut, invited the company to make tracks for the house to partake of lunch. This was quickly taken advantage of, and soon the whole party were perfectly happy, full and contented.

One of the students, in a witty little speech, voiced the thanks of the school, for Mr. Collicut's kind invitation and repeat. The whole company gave a ringing cheer and sang "For he's a jolly good fellow."

Mr. Collicut briefly replied. Another visit was made to the barns, and shortly after the cars were again loaded and making tracks for the station to catch the afternoon train north.

Thanks are due to those gentlemen who gave their time and use of cars to the party.

From what we saw on Saturday we are convinced that Alberta will be the gainers in years to come, some of the young men gave proof that there will be no lack of good ranchers
